Chesterfield's new half-mile Riparian path features multiple boardwalks

Chesterfield's exceptional system of trails became even more impressive with the opening of a Riparian Trail, which is a trail that follows along a stream or waterway.

The 10-foot-wide path has a crushed stone surface, similar to that of the Katy Trail, and is approximately a half mile long. Designed to preserve the natural surroundings, the trail often features encounters with deer and other wildlife, along with a variety of plants and trees. Carefully placed boardwalks guide trail users through a lush landscape.

The trail will be extended in the future to connect to the Chesterfield Family Aquatic Center and on to Old Chesterfield Road. Ultimately the trail will connect with the Monarch-Chesterfield Levee Trail.

Phase 1 of the Trail can be accessed from the south side of Lydia Hill Drive near the intersection of Veterans Place Drive. The trail entrance can be found on Lydia Hill Drive, directly across from the new Veterans Place Drive. Parking is available in the Family Aquatic Center parking lot.

Boardwalks enhance the newly opened Riparian Trail, which winds for a half mile along a stream through natural surroundings.

Mayor's Message

Despite a sluggish national economy, Chesterfield's trends are positive

During my first few months as mayor, many exciting things have happened in the City. Heading the list is the opening of the amphitheater, completion of the first phase of the Riparian Trail in central city, and the soon to be completed first phase of Eberwein Park that will include our first dog park.

Additionally, many new businesses opened in Chesterfield, and our staff in the economic development and planning divisions and I have had several meetings with developers to discuss potential new projects. For the fourth consecutive month this year, all of our operating funds have seen an increase in sales tax revenues compared to this time last year. As the summer draws to an end, I am pleased to say that Chesterfield continues to show signs of increased economic activity.

There are a number of events that are either planned or have already occurred that will add to this economic activity, both for Chesterfield as well as the entire region. The East-West Gateway Council of Governments recently approved $128.7 million to fund construction of a new Boone Bridge over the Missouri River. The project will replace the current narrow west bound bridge.

The current east bound lanes will switch to west bound lands and the newly built section will handle east bound traffic. Construction could start as soon as late 2012, improving an important link to St. Charles County and I-70.

We have seen significant activity in the retail sector. In the Valley, Big Lots opened in the former Circuit City location, and Gordmans and Aldi are under construction on the east side of Home Depot in the Chesterfield Commons, with plans to be open this fall. Ross Dress for Less, similar to TJ Maxx or Marshall's, announced plans to open in the former Linen's & Things in March 2012. This will be one of the company's first locations in the St. Louis market. At the Mall, BAM recently opened in the former Borders location. Both the Commons and Mall have occupancy rates around 95% or higher, so they have done a great job keeping spaces open and occupied!

On the dining front, Tahoe Joe's, a West Coast steak house known for its hardwood charbroiled cooking method and Lake Tahoe lodge ambiance, will be opening its first restaurant in the St. Louis market in the former Home Town Buffet location. St. Louis Sippery recently opened at Long and Edison, where one can indulge in a piece of gooey butter cake or have a gluten free cupcake! If you like frozen yogurt, Lancia's and FroYo offer two new places to try. With over 150 choices, diners can always find something to their liking in Chesterfield!

While it's exciting to talk about all the new stores and restaurants, it's important to recognize existing businesses that are growing and creating jobs. The Missouri Higher Education Loan Authority (MOHELA) plans to add 169 new jobs over the next 18 months. The Spirit of St. Louis Airport is investing in its future with a $4 million real estate purchase and is seeing an increase in flights, which are up more than 10% from 2010. Businesses such as Insituform Technologies and Reinsurance Group of America continue to gain contracts and grow their business base as well.

With all of this good news, we are optimistic that even better and more exciting days are ahead for our great City of Chesterfield.

In an effort to remind residents of the danger of firearms kept in the home, the Chesterfield Police Department has a limited number of cable-style gun locks available to assist in safely securing your firearms.

Any citizen interested in receiving a free gun lock can obtain one at City Hall. Remember, it is a firearm owner's responsibility to not only know how to properly handle the firearm but also to properly secure it in a safe manner in the home!

Winter Warm Up set for November

The City of Chesterfield will once again be participating in the "Warner's Winter Warm Up," sponsored by the Kurt Warner Foundation.

This event, founded by former Rams quarterback Kurt Warner and wife Brenda, allows residents to donate gently used coats that are later passed along to individuals in need. The collection will be held in November with a drop off point at City Hall.

The exact collection dates will be announced later on the City's web site.

AARP driver safety course scheduled Oct. 11, City Hall

Graduates of the course may be eligible to receive discounts from their auto insurance carriers.

The course will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 11, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at City Hall. Reservations are required.

Bicycle safety need not be all uphill – helmets help save lives, prevent injuries

Hopefully, as a parent, you wouldn't dream of letting your children ride in the front seat of your family car without a seat belt. Would you let them jog along a busy Interstate? Would you let them go in the deep end of the pool if they didn't know how to swim?

How about riding a bicycle without a helmet?

Most people don't associate riding a bike without a helmet as being as dangerous as these other activities, but in 2009 there were 630 fatalities from bicycling and over 51,000 traffic related injuries. Every year more than 300,000 children under the age of 14 are treated in emergency rooms for bicycle-related injuries. However, deaths are down by 58 percent from 2000, thanks to increased helmet use.

So how difficult would it be to convince your child that bike helmets are cool? Not difficult at all. The key to bike safety is to have your child realize at an early age that bike riding is fun, but it cannot be done without a helmet.

Parents should model good behavior from the start. On family bike rides, make sure that all the members of the family have helmets. Explain, just as a seat belt can save lives, so too can the simple task of wearing a helmet. Just like refusing to move your car until everyone is belted, children should not be allowed to ride their bikes until helmets are on.

Positive examples can be found in many places. Professional bicyclists wear helmets in all races. BMX racers have theirs on, too. Parents can point out that even police officers who ride their bikes to protect the public wear helmets.

PLANNING & PUBLIC WORKS

Road Work

December is target for completion of the Lydia Hill extension

Work continues to connect Lydia Hill Drive with August Hill Drive.

Progress is being made as installation of the box culvert is complete, and Chesterfield Creek is now routed through the culvert. Storm sewers are being installed, and the grading operation continues.

Road construction began in August, and it should be substantially complete this December. The road will then provide a direct connection between Chesterfield Parkway West and Baxter Road.

Improvements planned at Long, Wild Horse Creek, Kehrs Mill

The long awaited improvements to Long Road and Wild Horse Creek Road are quickly approaching. The project is financed by the Chesterfield Valley Transportation District (TDD) through a 3/8-cent sales tax collected by businesses in the Chesterfield Valley.

Bids on the project will be taken this fall and work is scheduled for completion in Summer 2013. This work involves improving Long Road to a full five lanes to Wild Horse Creek Road and eliminating the flood gate at the railroad tracks. The bridge on Wild Horse Creek Road is also being replaced.

St. Louis County will be managing the project and has committed to keeping Long Road open to traffic during construction. But there will be delays and irregular pavement, so using alternate routes is suggested.

During the project, Kehrs Mill Road must be temporarily closed at Wild Horse Creek Road for a 30-day period. That closure is planned to begin in mid-June 2012 to minimize the impact on schools. During this time, Wild Horse Creek Road east of Long Road will also be closed. This work is complicated by the relocation of a 42" water line, which can only be completed during the low-use winter months.

As they become available, updates will appear at www.stlouisco.com/PropertyandRoads. Search for "Wild Horse Creek."

Unwanted drugs can be safely handed in during event at City Hall

Chesterfield residents are getting another safe, responsible way to dispose of unwanted prescription and over-the-counter drugs.

Increasingly, prescription and over-the-counter drugs are being used by teens and youth at parties or for experimentation. Even over-the-counter drugs can have unexpected and adverse health effects. Chesterfield lawn pro shares tips to get yards in shape this autumn

By Brian Winka

Parks Maintenance Supervisor

Fall is a good time to get on track for a great lawn next spring. Here's a summary of lawn care tips for established tall fescue and Kentucky bluegrass in Chesterfield:

Apply fertilizer in September and November. One pound of nitrogen per 1000 square feet is a good rule of thumb for fall fertilization. Apply again in May only if the lawn will be watered through the summer.

Maintain a grass height of 2.5 to 3.5 inches, even into November. Tall fescue can be mowed higher than Kentucky bluegrass. Mowing height can be dropped for the first spring cutting to remove dead grass blades.

Water in the fall only enough to prevent wilting. If you overseed, keeping the seed moist is the best thing you can do. It must stay moist to germinate, and when it does germinate, the seedlings will die if they dry out.

Aerate your lawn in the fall before you seed so water and air get down to the root zones of your grass.

Seed in September through mid-October. Sometimes, the weather gets ugly before we reach mid-October, with cold snaps, rain and thunderstorms, etc., so don't wait until the last moment. Seed will germinate when daytime temperatures are consistently 68° to 85° F (soil temperature approximately 55°).

Spring is not a good time to seed. It will germinate, come up well, but when summer hits, and the fescue hasn't had time to develop a root system, the heat will take it out. Also, if you seed in the spring, you won't be able to put down pre-emergents in those areas, so you may have a weed problem. Use about 6-8 pounds of grass seed per 1,000 sq. ft. for tall fescue, and 2-3 pounds per 1,000 sq. ft. if you are planting Kentucky bluegrass.

For dandelions and clover prevention, herbicides are most effective in the fall. Spray in late October or early November on a sunny day that is 50 degrees or warmer.

When the leaves start falling, be sure to remove them from the lawn or mulch them with a mulching mower. Leaves will block sunlight from reaching the grass blades so don't allow a buildup on the lawn.

IN REMEMBRANCE: JOAN SCHMELIG

Chesterfield pioneer, Chamber of Commerce president passes away

Chesterfield's "First Lady" and 2010 Citizen of the Year passed away on Saturday, Aug. 6, 2011, at age 70.

Joan "Joanie" Schmelig was the president of the Chesterfield Chamber of Commerce for more than 25 years – longer than the City of Chesterfield has been incorporated. Noted Mayor Bruce Geiger: "Joanie helped make Chesterfield what it is today – a complete community, with thriving commercial centers and quality recreational opportunities. She had a unique and long-lasting impact upon our community and will be greatly missed."

Ms. Schmelig was known for her tireless energy and for her willingness to always go the extra mile on behalf of the greater Chesterfield community. City Administrator Mike Herring commented:

"Before Chesterfield became a city, Joan Schmelig was the Mayor/City Administrator/Judge and Jury! Yet, when the city incorporated, in 1988, she vigorously worked to forge a strong partnership, between the Chamber of Commerce and our city government. When the Flood of 1993 was imminent, she led efforts to communicate to all of the Valley businesses and even worked to fill sandbags. During and after the flood, she worked tirelessly and was committed to the Valley's recovery and to assisting those most affected by the flood. I have tremendous respect for Joan Schmelig and am honored to have known and worked with her!"

Ms. Schmelig was instrumental in establishing numerous events that Chesterfield residents look forward to each year, such as the Summer Concerts in Faust Park and the Gumbo Flats Pumpkin Run. Having been an avid softball player and coach, Joanie was also involved in the initial group of leaders who secured and helped purchase the property for what is now the Chesterfield Valley Athletic Complex.

Among her other awards and accomplishments, Ms. Schmelig was honored by Progress 64 West in 2009 with the "Excellence in Community Development Award" and she was given the "Top Level Award" by the Chamber of Commerce Executives in Missouri in 1994.

She is survived by her husband, Richard Schmelig; a son, Greg Schmelig; a daughter and son-in-law, Cindy and Michael Blake; grandchildren, Madison, Corbin and Sheridan Schmelig, Hunter and Isabella "Izzy" Blake; mother, Hilda Meyer (nee Small); and sisters, Marion Pleis and Janet Nichols.

Dramatic License spotlights Mae West

Before Lady Gaga, there was Mae West. Through the eyes of two adoring fans – Charlie, a shy archivist, and temp/actress Jo – this biographical comedy with music chronicles the early vaudeville to late movie career of the woman Dick Cavett called, “The Eighth Wonder of the World.”

Witness the daring diva as seductress, singer, playwright, producer and star as she wriggles and sashays her way from the 1920s to the 1970s in a heavily male-dominated industry to become one of the most imitated and beloved characters of all time.

The show contains adult themes and language. Theater goers are invited to come up and see her sometime Sept. 15-Oct. 2. Performances run Thursday-Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. The theater seats 85 and is located in the ARTropolis arts district in Chesterfield Mall.
